Having a big-name boat-yard is not enough for some owners – who are now employing leading architects to create their domestic space at sea. Norman Foster's 41-metre model, just launched in Italy, is not to everyone's taste – ultra-contemporary and with acres of windows. But it will appeal to those who want sunlight streaming through every wall possible, to slip down a glass staircase to the decks below (there are four), and square, clean-lined furnishings. A 50-sq.-metre upper saloon, with a 53-sq.-metre owners' suite, will appeal to those whose idea of luxury is simply space and more space. To buy, fractionally, from €1,875,000 for an eighth, from www.yachtplus.com

- To view a range of yachts for charter, priced from under €20,000 a week for a sailing yacht sleeping six to more than €660,000 for a vessel accommodating 36 guests, contact Camper & Nicholsons (www.cnconnect.com), Ocean Independence (www.oceanindependence.com), Fraser (www.fraseryachts.com), Edmiston (www.edmistoncompany.com) or Burgess (www.burgessyachts.com)
